The Japan Anti-Tuberculosis Association began producing double-barred cross seals in 1952. JATA’s seals come in sheets of 24 or 6 seals. In 2013, they sold 298,000 large sheets and 1,674,100 small sheets. The funds are used to support TB control programmes both in Japan and in high-burden countries, as well as to promote public awareness and to support women’s organisations.
